Default organizational structure

organization, contract

A default type of tree structure can be defined by configuration which will serve as the organizational structure in the application (a kind of a shortcut) and also as the default element of the organizational structure which will be used for the creation of default contractual relationship (CR, see further here).

The organizational structure has its own location in the main menu. In the organizational structure agenda, it is possible to go through both the individual parts of the structure and the users who are linked to the organizational structure through CR. In the agenda, only the users related to a certain type of the structure are displayed ⇒ those who have CR in the organizational structure.
